Guiding Lights is an invaluable new service in Raleigh, North Carolina. Where else can an overburdened caregiver go and get the best guidance in finding help? Caring for another, whether a loved one or as a professional, can be completely draining and overwhelm the best of us.

Guiding Lights is staffed by the most caring and informed people available, who offer information, training and help with finding the right person or company for each need. Nicole Bruno, Executive Director, is the perfect person to head this non-profit and should be commended highly for pulling all this together in such a wonderful way. Nicole brings a level of expertise, passion, dedication and compassion that is unmatched.

A comprehensive program with training and resources is only one part. The skills lab, resource library, and the family match program are not available elsewhere. Everything you need to help you on the road to being an effective caregiver is housed in Guiding Lights. Before Guiding Lights, it was everyone for themselves. Now a true Guiding Light is available, for free, to any caregiver who needs help. Priceless!

I personally look forward to working with Nicole and Guiding Lights through many years of assisting caregivers.

Sincerely,
